St. Johns River Hurricane Matthew Waterway Debris Removal

The Florida Department of Environmental Protection has begun removing debris related to Hurricane Matthew in the St. Johns River. Contractors began along the Julington Creek shoreline and will continue working south to remove and dispose of vegetative and structural debris in the waterway. The contractor will only remove debris in the river, and it must be related to Hurricane Matthew. Debris located on or attached to private property will not be removed. To report waterway debris or for more information, please email waterwaydebris@gmail.com.
