The expansion of the PGA Tour headquarters in Ponte Vedra Beach has been recognized by Area Development Site and Facility Planning magazine as Florida's top investment and job creation project, being awarded a 2019 Silver Shovel award. The awards program recognizes high-value investment projects that bring a significant amount of new jobs to the area. According to a news release by St. Johns County, the new 187,000-square-foot building will serve as the worldwide headquarters for the PGA Tour. The project, which requires an $86 million investment, is also expected to add 307 new jobs to the workforce of 800 existing employees that are expected to move in sometime in 2020 after the completion of the building.
