WHEREAS, in 1999 St. Johns County enacted ordinance 99-51 which adopted the St. Johns County Land Development Code; and

WHEREAS, on December 4, 2002 the United States District Court, Middle District of Florida, Jacksonville Division, entered a judgment in Case No. 3:98-CV-597-J-21HTS, Café Erotica of Florida, Inc. v St. Johns County, that determined that three sections (7.00.01, 7.00.08, and 7.03.01) of Article VII of the County's 1999 Land Development Code were unconstitutional; and

WHEREAS, the District Court's judgment enjoined the County from enforcing Article VII of the County's 1999 Land Development Code; and

WHEREAS, Article VII of the County's Land Development Code regulates signs; and
WHEREAS, on October 15, 2002, prior to the District Court's judgment, St. Johns County enacted ordinance 2002-61 which deleted in its entirety the Article VII in the County's Land Development Code that was created by ordinance 99-51 and which enacted a new Article VII in its stead; and

WHEREAS, the County disagreed with the District Court's conclusions and appealed the judgment to the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals; and

WHEREAS, certain sections in the Article VII in the County's Land Development Code that was created by County ordinance 2002-61 were subsequently amended by County ordinance 2002-72; and

WHEREAS, on February 23, 2004 the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals filed an opinion that determined Section 7.03.01 of the 1999 Article VII that was created by ordinance 99-51 was unconstitutional and that the 1999 Article VII lacked specific guidelines needed to limit the discretion of the County Administrator with regard to the sizes of signs that contain political messages; and

WHEREAS, the County has never prohibited political messages, including campaign messages, from being substituted for any other message on any lawfully erected sign, and desires to further confirm that policy and practice in Article VII; and

WHEREAS, the County has determined that Article VII of the County's current Land Development Code as created by County ordinance 2002-61 and as amended by County ordinance 2002-72, while constitutional as applied, can be further improved to address the appellate court's concerns about the now deleted 1999 Article VII; and

WHEREAS, the County believes that Article VII of the County's current Land Development Code can be further improved by modifications herein.

NOW THEREFORE BE IT ORDAINED by the Board of County Commissioners of St. Johns County, Florida (the "Board"), as follows:

Section 1. The above paragraphs in the preamble to this ordinance are adopted and incorporated herein as findings of fact.

Section 2. The Board hereby makes the following additional findings of fact and amends the current St. Johns County Land Development Code by adding such additional findings to Section 1.02.04 of Article I thereof:

- M. The proliferation of Signs, Flags, Pennants, Spinners, Streamers and other objects that are intended to attract the attention of the public creates distractions to motorists, bicyclists, pedestrians and other members of the traveling public that have the effect of causing accidents, causing such persons to take dangerous evasive actions to avoid accidents, and are adverse to the interests of traffic safety.
- N. The proliferation of Signs, Flags, Pennants, Spinners, Streamers and other objects that are intended to attract the attention of the public also create visual clutter and adversely affect the aesthetic interests of the public.
- O. The regulations that are set forth in Article VII (created by ordinance 2002-61 and amended by ordinance 2002-72) of the St. Johns County Land Development Code and as amended hereby are narrowly tailored and advance the County's interest in promoting traffic safety, preventing visual clutter and protecting aesthetic interests of the public.
- P. On February 23, 2004, the United States Court of Appeals for The Eleventh Circuit Court filed its opinion in Café Erotica of Florida, Inc., et al. v St. Johns County Case Nos: 02-16718 and 03-11385 in which the Court held that Sections 7.00.01 and 7.00.08 of the Article VII that was created in 1999 by St. Johns County ordinance 99-51 are constitutional. Those sections were repealed in 2002 by St. Johns County ordinance 2002-61 and were replaced by the Sections 7.00.01 and 7.00.08 that were created in 2002 by St. Johns County ordinances 2002-61 and 2002-72. Sections 7.00.01 and 7.00.08 in the current Article VII of the County's Land Development Code contain no differences from the 1999 sections that would affect their constitutionality.
